

Get one of the nation's best savings rates in 5 minutes.

Start Saving

SOMETHING FOR THE WEEKEND

Where To Eat In Dallas This Weekend

Exciting new eateries and the city's best food events await

by Rachel Pinn Updated Mar 2, 2018, 9:02am CST

 SHARE

CBD Provisions

Dying for dining inspiration? The weekend is just a few short hours away, and if you still need a place to eat brunch, lunch, or dinner this weekend, Eater's got your back.

As part of this brand new series, Eater editors and contributors will choose a group of brand new spots and reliable standbys every Friday that will provide a guide to everything you need to know about eating and drinking this weekend.

Even if you're not able to hit all of the spots on Saturday and Sunday, add these five Dallas restaurants and food-focused events to this weekend's bucket list. TGIF, y'all.

Friday, March 2

To impress a dinner date with serious steaks: CBD Provisions

There's a new steak menu in town and it's at CBD Provisions. The gastrobar is now taking full advantage of the Commissary, the restaurant's affiliated butcher shop, to offer diners 44 Farms and Bar N Ranch beef. Think Wagyu, grass-fed Black Angus, and more, aged 45 to 90 days.

To celebrate Texas Independence Day with "Modern Texas cuisine:" Stampede 66

Hailing from Big Spring, Texas himself, Chef Stephan Pyles has created a special multi-course menu to highlight some of the best of Texas in honor of Texas Independence Day. That dinner is available for Texans to enjoy today with corn dogs and funnel cake. See more here.

To drink negronis and eat all the truffles: Da Mario

Da Mario, Frisco's new high-end Italian restaurant, is open for business in The Star. Featuring ingredients imported from Italy and menu items like tableside fettuccine alla fiamma, topped with shaved black truffles. A negroni cart allows guests to create their own customized version of the classic cocktail.

Get one of the nation's best savings rates in 5 minutes.

Start Saving

MOST READ

The Yard Will Open With Everything from a Beer Garden to a Dog Park

The 15 Hottest Restaurants In Dallas Right Now, March 2018

Presented By

Where to Find Dallas' Best Poke Bowls

More Details on Paul Qui's Exact Involvement in Richardson's Soon-to-Open Tacqui

